Other Salzburg dignitaries will also attend this function!

Prince Archbishop Wolf Dietrich von Raitenau was a man of foresight. He transformed the city of Salzburg into a masterpiece of Italian Baroque architecture. The Residenz served the secular and spiritual leaders for entertainment purposes.

Today as in earlier years, the state rooms are used by the state government on formal occasions, e.g. for official receptions, Festival receptions and similar high-caliber occasions. They also serve as an ideal setting for concerts.

Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart played in these rooms regularly. His violin concerto, K. 219 in A minor, was first performed in the Conference Room of the Residenz on December 20, 1775.
